

Our confidentiality policy

Special Educational Needs and Disabilities Information, Advice and Support Services (SENDIASS) are statutory services offering free impartial advice and information for children, young people and their parents, about special educational needs (SEND) procedures as set out in SEN legislation and the SEND Code of Practice 2015.

SENDIASS are expected to meet certain National Minimum Standards as prescribed by the government and to ensure that services are delivered with confidentiality and impartiality, which are key to providing services that parents and young people will trust.

SENDIASS North Yorkshire is committed to providing a confidential service to its users and recognises that all children, young people and their parents should be able to access this service in confidence. SENDIASS North Yorkshire respects the right of anyone to contact the service anonymously and will not try to elicit detailed information if the caller wishes to preserve their anonymity. The service is committed to the principle that children, young people and their parents have a right to expect that the information they share with us will:

- be respected and not passed on to anyone else without their express permission (unless we have a statutory obligation to do so)
- that we will handle any such information in ways that conform with the General Data Protection Regulations (GDPR) and Data Protection Act requirements

Note: All references to ‘parents’ throughout this policy includes ‘parents and carers’

Practical arrangements

SENDIASS North Yorkshire operates a self-referral system where children, young people and their parents contact the service directly through the dedicated website (contact form), email, phone lines or face-to-face. With the permission of the parent or young person referrals can be made by practitioners, educational settings staff and other services including health and social care services.

We will only provide in depth casework support directly to children and young people or to those parents who hold parental responsibility, guardianship or are formal carer's, such as foster carers. Children and young people and their parents may occasionally contact the service independently of each other in which case staff will treat both as separate enquires. Extended family members who contact the service will only be offered general information not pertaining to an individual unless prior consent is obtained.

Our staff will not tell any other person or agency that a parent or young person has approached the service without the parent or young person's agreement.

Our staff will always obtain permission from parents and young people prior to speaking to or discussing the situation with another professionals and this consent will be recorded.

We will always obtain permission from parents and young people to access any records from other professionals; these are often required in order to build a background of the case and to provide appropriate support.

We will encourage service users to share relevant information with school staff, other services or individuals where it is in the best interests of the child or parent to do so.

With the parent or child's consent SENDIASS North Yorkshire staff will work closely with other practitioners and organisations supporting children with special educational needs in compliance with the Children and Young People's engagement and participation charter.

We continue to work predominantly from home but on the occasions, we work from a base, SENDIASS North Yorkshire office space is separate from all SEND services and other local authority staff that may have a conflict of interest.

The service has a confidential email address and telephone line. When sending information care will be taken to establish the correct mailing details.

We would usually consider it acceptable to contact parents and young people via home telephone and mobile telephones, but should check with parents and young people whether it is acceptable to call them at work. If we leave messages on answerphones or with family members no identifiable information is given, expect to say SENDIASS North Yorkshire has called.

Case work records are held within the SENDIASS North Yorkshire database and will be treated confidentially. Information held by SENDIASS North Yorkshire is not accessible by other services within the Local Authority.

Use of data

SENDIASS North Yorkshire is bound by statutory and legal requirements, including:

- Data Protection Act
- Freedom of Information Act
- Children's and Families Act
- Rehabilitation of Offenders Act
- Prevention of Terrorism Act

As part of the arrangements under the GDPR which came into effect on 25 May 2018, SENDIASS North Yorkshire has provided a full privacy notice on its website. The notice outlines the reasons for collecting information and data from service users.

The service complies with safeguarding Children and Vulnerable Adults procedures.

The only exception to confidentiality is in regard to information which leads us to believe a person is at serious risk of harm or others are at serious risk of harm. We have a legal duty to pass on concerns regarding child or adult protection and are required to comply with North Yorkshire Council's policy about Safeguarding. All staff have a legal duty of care to report concerns. Where appropriate and if time is available, we will try to let you know that we are following this policy beforehand. Concerns regarding a risk of harm should be discussed with the Service Manager as first point.

Provision of information

Should there be a Subject Access Request for Personal Information from a parent, child or young person, whose information is held by SENDIASS North Yorkshire, the request will be dealt with in line with the principles in the Data Protection Act.

Policy effectiveness

A copy of the confidentiality policy will be displayed on the SENDIASS North Yorkshire website.

On initial contact the confidentiality statement will be brought to the attention of the coordinator so that the service user can ask more questions or read this policy from the website.

SENDASS North Yorkshire resources states the confidential nature of the service.

Existing and new staff and volunteers will be introduced to this policy via induction and training and it is expected that all SENDIASS North Yorkshire staff and volunteers will adhere to this policy.

Volunteers with the service will be expected to sign a confidentiality agreement.

Monitoring the Policy

Day to day monitoring of the policy will be undertaken by the Service Manager.

The service seeks feedback from service users of how confidential they felt the service to be.

This policy will be reviewed annually by the ENDIASS North Yorkshire manager and brought before the Steering Group if actions are needed by adding to the agenda. Any Amendments should be agreed and recorded in the minutes of the meeting.
